

Lit. Elem.: Language

Term	Definition	Example
Diction	the manner in which we express words	Word choice What you say and how you say it.
Style	the distinctive way in which an author uses language	refers to the to a specific author's methods of using tone, word choice, sentence structure, and voice in the text.
Denotation	dictionary meaning of a word, independent of other associations that the word may have	"You are a dog." As in, you are literally a fuzzy, four-legged canine.
Connotation	set of ideas and emotions associated with a word in addition to its exact meaning	"You are a dog." As in, you are a terrible, terrible person.
Tone	The speaker's or narrator's attitude towards the subject. Spoken or written	"My buddies forced me to go on the date." We could assume that the individual didn't really enjoy the date.
Mood	The general feeling or atmosphere that a piece of writing creates within the reader. felt	A depressing, somber mood is created in Bronte's Wuthering Heights: "There was no moon, and everything beneath lay in misty darkness: not a light gleamed from any house..."

Lit. Elem.: Language

Term	Definition	Example
Diction	the manner in which we express words	Word choice What you say and how you say it.
Style	the distinctive way in which an author uses language	refers to the to a specific author's methods of using tone, word choice, sentence structure, and voice in the text.
Denotation	dictionary meaning of a word, independent of other associations that the word may have	"You are a dog." As in, you are literally a fuzzy, four-legged canine.
Connotation	set of ideas and emotions associated with a word in addition to its exact meaning	"You are a dog." As in, you are a terrible, terrible person.
Tone	The speaker's or narrator's attitude towards the subject. Spoken or written	"My buddies forced me to go on the date." We could assume that the individual didn't really enjoy the date.
Mood	The general feeling or atmosphere that a piece of writing creates within the reader. felt	A depressing, somber mood is created in Bronte's Wuthering Heights: "There was no moon, and everything beneath lay in misty darkness: not a light gleamed from any house..."